Talk of "Leak" of Note to Germany Helps to Build the Market.

There did not need to be intimations that the half dozen brokerage firms knew what was in the President's latest note to Germany. The regularity with which the pendulum had swung back and forth in the last three weeks was too much for the market. # STEADY CABLES AND COVERING OF SHORTS IN STREET HELP RECOVER LOSSES.

The cotton market just about recovered Wednesday's losses during yesterday's trading, with the close firm, at a net advance of 12 to 17 points. Weather conditions continued favorable in the South, but traders were less nervous over the political situation, and many of Wednesday's sellers appeared inclined to cover up their commitments before the publication of the German note. The firmers' trade in the stock market doubtless helped the advance in cotton, as tending to create a more optimistic feeling over general conditions, while the continued absence of hedge selling and the larger spot business reported at the decline in Liverpool also served to encourage a little freer buying for long account. After Wednesday's selling movement contracts seemed comparatively scarce, and it did not require a great deal of closing in to send October cotton up to 9.55c, or about 14 points net higher. Closing prices were within a point or two of the best.
